Healing with improv, coping with loss though comedy

Join Hospice of Michigan for this free grief support group

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (April XX, 2017) – Join Hospice of Michigan for a Comedy Improv Grief Workshop happening on Tuesday, May 9 from 1-2:30 p.m. at Georgetown Senior Center, 7096 8th Street in Jenison.

Life without a loved one can be overwhelming, even long after that person has passed. To help individuals coping with grief, Hospice of Michigan offers a supportive, caring and laughter-filled event to work through the loss.

This workshop is designed to provide a fun and healing experience to those in grief by demonstrating that even in the darkest of times, there is a light forward to joy and hope. Leading the workshop will be Bart Sumner, founder of Healing Improv, a group that specializes in bringing the therapeutic power of comedy to all those who need it. After the passing of Sumner's 10-year-old son, he turned to his love of humor to get him through the unimaginable time.

“When you have lost someone you love, it can feel as if you will never smile again,” said Sue Glover, grief support services manager of Hospice of Michigan. “But with this improv group we fight that feeling head on. It reminds people that it is ok to smile and see joy in the world, even after a loved one has passed on. We care not just for our patients, but their family and friends.”

Support groups and events are open to everyone, regardless of whether their loved one received services from Hospice of Michigan. All grief support programs are free of charge, but donations are welcome to help support the nonprofit's programming. This event is open to all adults in the community but you must register for the event by calling Sue Glover at 616-356-5255 or Bonnie Chasseur at 616-340-7363.
